

Sarah Perry trained at Camberwell Art School where her teachers were Lucie Rie and Hans Coper. She gained a BA Hons in Ceramics.

In the seventies she lived and worked in Argentina, exhibiting in Buenos Aires in-between journeys around South America. During the nineties her work was sold at Liberties, Heals, and The Conran Shops in London, Paris and Tokyo. Pieces of her work are in the collections of Paul Merton, Jude Law, Ralph Fiennes and Jonathan Pryce. She now lives and works in Greenwich, London, producing work for galleries.